ARREST MAY BE EFFECTED THERE TODAY

Chief and Deputy Leave in High-powered Motor Car

SUSPECT BELIEVED EMPLOYED ON FARM

Youth Said to Have Been Here on Day of the Killing

An arrest in the Milner murder mystery may be made today. Following sensational information which came into their hands on Friday, Chief of Police A. G. Shute and Deputy Chief Blackwood left early this morning in a high-powered car for Leduc.

The man for whom they are looking is said to be employed on a farm near that place, and Chief Blackwood, who knows the district, is accompanying Chief Shute.

Just what the information in the hands of the authorities is they refuse to divulge, and Chief Shute and his deputy are still out of the city. Their appearance in Leduc this morning caused some surprise. They are said to be looking for a man who is believed to have been working in connection with the case since the age of 17, and who is said to have been in the little shop on 84th street.

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

The first division in the new Parliament of Canada occurred early today morning. The issue was a resolution introduced by Mr. Meighen, leader of the Conservative Opposition, declaring that "Those who now assume to be His Excellency's advisers have among them no Prime Minister with a seat in either House of Parliament, and under such circumstances are not competent to act as, or to become, the committee of Parliament commonly known as the Government, or to address Parliament through His Excellency, and their attempted continuance in office is a violation of the principles and practice of British constitutional government."

By a vote of 123 to 120 Parliament refused to declare in these terms that Mr. Meighen, now Mr. King, should be the Prime Minister of Canada; that it was the duty of the Government to resign and make way for the Opposition; that the House of Commons should be dissolved and a new election called; and that the Ministers had failed to do this they should be voted out of office and Mr. Meighen permitted to form a cabinet. One Conservative member was absent, through illness. His vote, had he been present, would have cut down the majority against the resolution to 2. Five Progressive members, three from Alberta and three from Saskatchewan, voted to this condemnation of the Ministers for having failed to resign, and to oust them and put a Meighen Government in their place. Had the vote been carried, the resolution, Canada would be under a high tariff Government today. The allegations that the Progressive group is an association of unscrupulous traders, or a band of traitors in disguise, will look strange when Mr. Meighen's majority friends put them on parade in future.

Parliament, by the narrow majority of three, refused to say that the Government should get out or be put out; but that decision does not end the matter. The cleavage is too fundamental for that. What will be the position of these Meighen Progressives when the vote comes on the motion to approve the program outlined in the Speech from the Throne? Will they then support the government, or will they support the opposition? The carrying through of a policy drafted on the lines of their own party platform, on which they were elected, or will they by their votes admit they have sold out to the opposition for them at a price, and what is the price?

Mr. Meighen's policy is one that would ruin any chance for a period of real prosperity during the three or four years of the next Parliament. High tariff means only added burdens of taxation for the farmers whose votes seem to Parliament the Progressive members who have bet on the issue. Parliament has failed, as signally as the elections in October last, to stabilize politics. A nominal majority of two in a House of two hundred and forty members is altogether too small to guarantee continuity of Government and effectiveness of policy. The absence of a handful of supporters, either in the House or in the Senate, could have the Administration liable to defeat on a snap vote and the policy of the country subject to sudden and complete reversal. With another general election on the only alternative. It is a situation in which anything may happen at almost any time.

HOW TO KILL THE PROPAGANDA

A Winnipeg man wants the Government to censor all news relating to the wheat market before the newspapers are allowed to print it. He accomplishes that the publication of wheat market news would have to be restricted by law, to papers published in a few of the larger marketing centres. Or there would have to be a Government censor in every wheat collecting town and village in the country where a newspaper is published.

A cheaper and more effective way of protecting the farmer against fake stories of bumper crops and crop failures in remote corners of the world would be for the Government to stand the expense of a cable service from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. Canada already has a cable service to the United States, and it is not too much to ask that the same service be extended to the rest of the world. The reports of the International Institute are reliable. They are based on official reports of all great producing countries. They provide the information upon which an individual anywhere has an intelligent basis for his estimate of the probable relation of world supply and world demand. If this information were made available to the Canadian public as quickly as it is compiled, it would tend to keep the farmer from speculating himself if he chose to ignore it and to take his wheat or his money on unofficial statements emanating from the strategists of the wheat pits.

MAKING MONEY—AND SAVING IT

Albertans last year loaned the Provincial Government more than two million dollars, buying savings certificates to a larger amount than they bought in any previous twelve months. Against that, of course, has to be the fact that the same former holders of certificates cashed in. But that does not affect the fact that among the 640,000 inhabitants of the Province were those who found that they had made more than two million dollars which they did not require for living expenses or investment in their business undertakings, and that they laid away this goosy sum against the "rainy day."

What they put into Government certificates represents only a minute fraction of what they saved last year. The balance standing to their credit in the banks would show a much larger gain than that on the year's operations.

OUR DAILY POEM

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

AN UNALTERABLE OPINION
It's my opinion alike given out
Beyond the slightest shadow of a doubt,
Considered carefully from any angle
With due regard to every twist and tangle
And all the controversy which may arise
My baby girl has most bewitching eyes.

Considering all things, this is my conclusion,
Amid the world's great clamor and confusion,
Its strange ideas and its vagrant customs
And all the queer contentions warring furiously
Concerning life on earth and life hereafter:
Nothing is sweeter than my baby's laughter.

I am no bigot, but I'll stick to this,
Though mad fanaticism round me snarl and hiss
And sneer and hiss and hiss and hiss and hiss
My voiced opinion, still I will not flinch.
This is my judgment: Earth no charm possesses
Lovelier than are my baby girl's carresses.

I will go further, this I now declare
To all who live on earth or 'neath the air,
'Tis my opinion, not in guile conceived,
But one at which I've solemnly arrived:
This baby girl of mine, who mounts my knee
Means more to me than all the world to me.

THE EYE ON THE CAT

THE Italians have a saying: "One eye on the frying pan and one on the cat."

It signifies the need of paying attention both to the positive work you are doing and also to the negative dangers that must be avoided.

In life it is necessary to follow that which is beneficial and avoid that which is harmful; to aid the builders and ward off the destroyers.

But a fact that is often forgotten is that the most important part of the task is connected with the frying pan and not the cat.

The eye on the cat may easily monopolize too great a share of our energies.

Serious critics of the church say it has been a victim of this error—that it has spent too great a proportion of its time in fighting AGAINST opponents instead of FOR its positive, progressive message.

It is the propensity of human nature oftentimes to give more time and attention to those they dislike than to those they love.

Have you ever had the experience of disliking some stranger for spectacular publicity so much that you read everything that mentioned his name to find new reasons for disliking?

If you have had this common experience you have been the victim of a trap set for that purpose.

A famous professional wrestler who made a fortune from the game is said to have purposely encouraged a bad reputation.

He was known as ugly, brutal and unscrupulous, and the crowds came in the hope of seeing him defeated. He cashed in on his bad reputation.

A recent writer declares that G. B. Shaw is not a Quakerish shatterer of ancient idols so much as a hard-headed business man who has stung the world with his sarcasm until he has achieved worldwide publicity to his own financial advantage.

The world has been likened to an oyster that secretes the pearl around the grain of sand that irritates it, for it has sometimes made men rich and famous because they were disagreeable.

The fallacy that most of us have to strive to avoid is the one of giving too much of our thought to those we dislike.

The eye on the cat should not be neglected, but the far greater emphasis should always be put on what you do like rather than on what you don't like; on what you are doing instead of what you are avoiding; doing; on the constructive side of life instead of the destructive side.

UNCOMMON SENSE

—BY JOHN BLAKE—

WHAT IS IN THE AIR?

Look toward the sky on a clear day.

You may see a few birds in wheeling flight, or here and there a trail of smoke.

How they are made and how they fly, how they are made and how they fly, how they are made and how they fly.

Now go into the house and "tune in" your radio.

You can hear, as you turn the dial, a great mass of voices from many places, all of which have been brought to you by electricity.

You can hear also strange crashes, rumblings, caused by electrical waves over your head—waves which are not yet fully understood.

Every long sea voyage of an ocean liner, and the voices of an orchestra, are sent from London to America throughout the eastern portion of the United States heard in the distance, yet with its own scratching and discordant sounds.

It is going to be the business of the future to be able to hear what these sounds are, and to be able to hear what these sounds are, and to be able to hear what these sounds are.

It is a sort of humanity water, and it is a sort of humanity water, and it is a sort of humanity water.

It is a sort of humanity water, and it is a sort of humanity water, and it is a sort of humanity water.

DIVERTING ATTENTION?

Toronto Globe—Secretary Hoover's campaign against British rubber monopoly is now declared by democratic congressmen to be merely an attempt to camouflage whole-sale taxation by United States rubber manufacturers. The pending investigation may rob Secretary Hoover of some of his prestige with the public. Anyway, there is no need for him to be so busy.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

The Husband Who Is Too Cowardly to Make a Will—Can There Ever Be a Second Love as Strong as the First?—The Wife Whose Cruel Husband Calls Her "Dear" Instead of "Mary"

DEAR DOROTHY DIX:—Why is it that some of the most devoted husbands with the most deserving wives cannot be induced to make out an insurance policy or make a will? My husband and I are everything to each other, and during the dozen years that we have been married we have worked shoulder to shoulder. I have avoided every penny, and as the result we have a nice home on which we are paying and some good stock, which are, of course, in his name. But I have never been able to induce him to make a will, and as if he died I would only have my widow's portion. I know my husband wants me to have what he has, and what I have helped to make just as much as he, but he just can't bring himself to make a will. What makes a man treat the woman he loves this way?

ANSWER:—It isn't lack of affection for you that keeps your husband from making the will, Mrs. Thrifty. It is because he is a coward who lacks the courage to face the fact that he must one day die. He cannot bring himself to visualize his own end as he is bound to do when he makes a will.

Many men have the same feeling, and it keeps them from making their wills and taking out life insurance. The foolishness of them is in presuming that they can evade the common fate of mankind by refusing to provide for their own lives, and in the event of their dying, leaving their affairs in disorder, and working a grievous wrong to their wives and children.

It is every man's bounden duty to protect his wife by taking out as much insurance as he can afford to carry, and by making a will that will take into consideration his wife's personality. In case such as yours, where the wife is a good business woman and knows how to handle money, it is safe to give her the money outright, but where the wife is a woman who knows nothing of financial matters, and who is as likely as not to sign a check "Yours affectionately," the husband should have her substantiated safely tied up in a good trust company.

Such women are the predestined victims of every sharper in their vicinity. All the getting over of their family use that they are of blood and intention to become money men. Pious gentlemen who come to their wives with their little affairs remain to them, and in the end, the husband's salesmen induce them to sell gilt-edged securities and invest in wildcat schemes that promise 50 per cent and pay nothing.

And the black sheep children who are always in trouble, whom mother is always paying out of her pocket, and who are always in the end, all of them find that they have no money to leave to their children. Thereby will he save them from their fortune, but their fortune is gone, and no well. For no woman can refuse to give her husband her money and live in peace with him, but he can't argue with papa's will.

Certainly it is every man's bounden duty to make a will, and if he won't do it of his own accord, it is his wife's duty to make him do it. So my advice to you, Mrs. Thrifty, is to have your husband's lawyer come around to the house some evening in the immediate future, and draw up the instrument then and there.

All your husband needs is to have his lawyer called up to a bit, and he will be as pleased to punch after the deed be over and he and she is still alive!

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX:—Do you think there is a second love? Can a man or woman who has loved or married, and lost, ever love again, or die, marry again and love as they loved the first one?

ANSWER:—Certainly the human heart is capable of loving more than once, and in many cases the second love is more beautiful, more fragrant and more soul-satisfying than the first.

This is particularly true in the case of those who have been married when they were very young. Their tastes then were unformed. They had not come to themselves, and did not know what they wanted in a wife or husband, and as they developed and their sense of values changed they found that they had outgrown their wife and husband.

But when they married again they were able to give to their second wife or husband the choice of their maturity, a depth of wisdom, a completeness of devotion, an understanding of each other that the first love never could furnish.

Then, too, we have people for different things, and it is quite possible for a man to have loved one wife because she was so beautiful and beautiful and kind, and another because she was so practical and sensible and domestic and made him comfortable.

For a woman to have loved one husband because he was so money-making and gave her luxuries and pearls, and to Adolph, who is so romantic and feels he would not go to bed without a story.

Perhaps we grow in wisdom in love with experience as we do in other things. Certainly marriage is no exception, and it is good to be happy than first marriage.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX:—What is your opinion of a husband who for thirteen years has forced his wife to live with him? During our engagement my husband formed the habit of calling me "dear" and "sweet" and "baby," although he knew this hurt me (terribly) and mortified me greatly. I have tried every way in the world to get him to stop, but without success, and my last resort was to tell you. Perhaps you will help me, and your reply, he will change.

ANSWER:—I trust he will, Mary, and I think he will, because it will probably make him realize for the first time that a sane woman could make such a monstrous mistake.

But you certainly put it all over the pampered princess who had to search under her forty mattresses of case to find a crumpled rose leaf. If you have nothing to object to in your husband except that he calls you "dear" and "sweet" and "baby," and yet you tell me you are miserable, you are certainly a trouble-bearer from way back. Take the blue ribbon as the champion. Nobody will dispute it with you.

Most women would be pleased to death to have a husband with such under thought that they ceased to have a mother as a woman, and were just something indolently precious and near to them, something dear and sweet. Suppose you had a husband who could in front of his wife call you "dear" and "sweet" and "baby," and yet you tell me you are miserable, you are certainly a trouble-bearer from way back. Take the blue ribbon as the champion. Nobody will dispute it with you.

I haven't much sympathy with you, Mary. All the pity I have got goes out to your husband. And later, dear, if I were you I would go and consult some real good adviser!

Enlarged Pores on Back and Chest

The possession of a smooth skin of the face is the basic ambition of many of our readers. For clothing most of the time it should be easy to keep it immaculate and smooth without any special treatment. When, however, the body pores are large, enlarged and plugged with grime, sebaceous matter, that is a sure sign that something is wrong either with the general health or with the skin.

We must remember that the skin is not merely a covering, like a sheet, but that it has no direct relationship with the body it covers, but is an organ of the body that has its own circulation, and who suffer from indigestion and constipation and have the worsting habit, betray their physical condition in the texture of their skin.

When an otherwise healthy person has enlarged, bumpy pores the remedy lies in local treatment. The skin should be cleaned with hot water, then scrubbed with a bath brush, and then with a bath brush every night. Let a thick layer remain on the skin until dry, then wash in cold water, dry and put on some talc, nicotin.

The following morning take a stimulating bath. This may be a cold, shower or tepid sponge or the friction of a bath towel.

"I suppose so," called Nancy. "Nick, you run and get it."

At this the Twins remembered what the Fairy Queen had told them about the trouble in Hilly Goo Land, and that if things were not patched up soon, they would be a revolution. RIGHT: EVELYN NESBIT, divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, from a portrait made but three days prior to an impulse to end it all by swallowing a large dose of lyso in her Chicago apartment, early the morning of January 5. Now that she has pulled through she is going to Florida. The photo bears evidence of the remarkable beauty that made her the most sought-after dancer-actress on Broadway 20 years ago.

VERNON FORBES (above), former goalkeeper of the Toronto and Hamilton teams and now with the New York Americans, is said to be the shortest man in professional hockey. He has been playing a great game in the nets this year. His pads are of his own design and the puck, coming in contact with them, is said to fall dead.

ARMY AND NAVY VETERANS HOLD HIGH WASSAIL

Celebration of Diamond Jubilee of Association a Merry Event

SERVICE TRADITIONS FAITHFULLY UPHELD

General Griebach, Lord Rodney and Mayor K. E. Blatchford Present

The diamond jubilee of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association was celebrated in the traditional manner of the British services Friday night in the Royal George Hotel. There were gathered in the four corners of the earth, met again and swapped yarns of France, Burma, South Africa and the Nile.

General Griebach, Lord Rodney and Mayor Blatchford, among other dignitaries and to the chorists, were one feature of the entertainment. Others were boxing contests, a real red ribbon sing-song and the supply column advancing with the troops and retiring.

Tables for four were set all about the room, with the junior chum of the old comrades. The wassail was a ring where the junior chum of the old comrades. The wassail was a ring where the junior chum of the old comrades.

After the usual social tribute to fallen comrades, President Nuroy introduced Lord Rodney, who was elected to the chair and filled the office during the evening. In a few minutes he introduced the wassail, the gathering reminded him of the old days, while he announced the intention of appointing for membership in the association.

An "Old Comptible" line, General Griebach referred to the wassail as one of the "Old Comptibles" and told the meeting that he was in France immediately after the outbreak of the war. The general traced the commencement of the wassail to the time when the Canadian organization was being formed by the veterans shortly after the "Crimes war," the membership being increased by the survivors of other conflicts down to the end of the Great War.

A Fine Record
This organization has a splendid record," said General Griebach, "and the old soldiers and their families are well represented in the British tradition."

Speeches were brief and to the point. The wassail was a ring where the junior chum of the old comrades. The wassail was a ring where the junior chum of the old comrades.

MAN FROM EMBARRAS BRINGS IN NEWS

Mid Weather Still Holding And River Has Broken Up

PORT McMURRAY, Alta., Jan. 15.—E. W. Reed, a trader from the Embarras, Portage, came in by dog team yesterday with a nice bale of fur. From Port McMurray he was accompanied by Alex Lindal, of the Hudson's Bay Company. Mr. Reed reports fur conditions between McMurray and Fort Smith as being poor, but at Fort McMurray the catch has been good.

To his trade, Mr. Reed has been in touch with the buffalo slayers down south. In his opinion, the rumors that the buffalo are heading for home are quite unfounded. He states that the male are tame and have learned themselves around Lake Claire and Deep Lakes, where there is an abundance of hay and good water. They seem to be quite contented and are not being molested by natives, nor do they appear to be any other by the vicinity.

Asked if the buffalo had gone to the River Hills, Mr. Reed said that they had reached that point, but had turned back. Trading in the neighborhood had counted over four hundred buffalo crossing Deep Lakes.

The Widow's Might

By Hazel Deyo Batchelor

Start this serial today. It is the sensation of newspaperdom

For Carson it had not attracted to them, she found a book entitled "The Widow's Might," and decided to read it. It was a new romance, and she was to make an impression on the young man, but she could not do so until she had read the book. The younger set read the book, and after having read it, she was to make an impression on the young man, but she could not do so until she had read the book.

It was not an easy task, but she was to make an impression on the young man, but she could not do so until she had read the book. The younger set read the book, and after having read it, she was to make an impression on the young man, but she could not do so until she had read the book.

ANNUAL REPORT RECOMMENDATION WOULD STRENGTHEN HAND OF LAW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Upwards of a score of recommendations for strengthening the hand of the law were placed before President Coolidge and Congress by Attorney General Clegg and his assistants in the annual report of the Department of Justice.

Among other things, Mr. Mahab Walker, William, the assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement, asked for heavier penalties for prohibition law violations, a general overhauling of the statutes dealing with rum smuggling, and an increase in legal and judicial personnel to expedite the handling of liquor cases generally.

Recommends longer terms. The Attorney General himself recommended longer terms for grand jurors, better pay for district judges, additional federal judges and several other legislative changes to make the federal courts more efficient.

Various phases of enforcement were discussed by Mr. William Walker, who did not touch on the recent reorganization of the Treasury.

The small penalties provided in the national prohibition act, wrote Mr. Walker, are inadequate to deter lawbreakers from engaging in the traffic in liquor.

GRAN, MARKETS AND FINANCE

GRAIN MARKET IS LISTLESS

Drop of Over One Cent in Saturday's Trading in Wheat

WINNIPEG, Jan. 15.—Listlessness characterized Winnipeg grain trade throughout the abbreviated session today and the net result was a drop of one cent and eight in the May futures as compared with Friday's prices. July was relatively the same. Wheat's potential ability as a resource in case more making itself felt in affecting prices. There were calls from the other side of the Atlantic to the effect that the Russians would curtail the world at the opening of navigation. This is accepted by some as propaganda issued by Europe with the hope of forcing down the price of wheat for Europe's own consumption. This, however, is highly improbable. It is there is any spot in the world where wheat is in excess of demand, it is in the United States.

The explanation offered for the present drop in price is that bulls in the New York stock exchange are trading by order.

NEW PAROLE FOR THE GUNMAN

New York Herald—On the amphibious theory that every criminal who is a gun in his work is a gun in his work, the state parole board has decided to grant parole to all prisoners of the state who are released within a year of their release. The board is of the opinion that the state should not waste money on the expense of keeping them in prison. If they did not expect and imprisoned to use their weapons

they would not provide themselves with them.
